

My Designer Cookbook:

Artists:

Layla Al- Attar created this mosaic of past President George Bush, as a form of protest. Her other work used darker colors and would be easy for your eyes to follow her artworks. Although my art is always changing, I like it when it is easier for the audience to trace out the image with their eyes. Whether that be through mosaic or my language. I like that it leaves me curious and wonder if I should add more or leave as is.

Movements I like:

One of the art movements I like is maximalism. I love when there are a bunch of things for the audience to be drawn into. So in my own space I like to have a lot of trinkets or photos of even magazine cut outs of things that I enjoyed or even the composition of it. For instance, the minimalist movement stemmed from facism and maximalism was a form of expression to protest that. I notice it even in my home small trinkets and huge forms of art either in book form, or painting form allow me to be able to see things I didn't see the first time.

Posters I made:

