The intern is still waiting for the bus while the intern with the boosted board has already went to the destination and is going back to the office. The other intern heads back too.

The intern is handing the important file to the supervisor and is getting praised for it. While the other intern is sad. The intern with the boosted board notices how sad the other intern is.

He heads toward the other intern and hands him his board and says "give you life a little boost"

The scene ends with the intern crossing by on the boosted board and the camera lowers down to his feet and the board and becomes unfocused with the boosted board logo in the end.
