Hi Wanett,

I hope this finds you well.

I'm sharing feedback on your openly-licensed educational object created during the Library O.E.R training. It was great having all of the librarians participate in the program and thank you specifically for your contribution to the excellent conversations.

Quick Intro to LibGuides

- Really informative video! This is a great resource for new librarians or librarians who haven't had the chance to make a LibGuide yet. It's been a while for me, so I will definitely keep your introduction nearby when I have to create a LibGuide again! I have just a few very minor suggestions:

- Licensing:
  - I don't want you to have to recreate the video, but perhaps you could add a static frame at the end of the video (using video editing software) that indicates that the video is openly licensed. Additionally, you can write in a description underneath of the video that the video is openly licensed.

- Accessibility:
  - I really like that you include a short textual version of what you are saying in the video!
  - Subtitles would be a great addition. If you upload the video to Youtube, subtitles/closed captioning should be automatically generated.

If you have any questions about the feedback or O.E.R., please feel free to be in touch.

On behalf of the whole O.E.R. team, Joshua, Cailean, and I, thank you for your participation in our training!

All the best,
Jo
