Value Proposition

Hello, my name is Wilson Guaman. Presently, I am a full-time student at New York City College of Technology, obtaining my Bachelor's degree in Communication Design. I intensely believe that my aspiration of moving forward with my career has helped me find my passion and to overcome any obstacle.

I am a sociable person who respects the point of view of each person, this helps me when we need to collaborate and share ideas. Listening and learning from people has helped me to have a better perspective of life, and definitely has helped to find my true passion in my career as a graphic designer. I strongly believe art is a significant part of my life. In my free time I like attending to galleries and events related to art. I also like reading graphic design magazines, for instance, digital arts, computer arts and my favorite web designer. I attain my inspiration by looking at this magazines and watching tutorials. A couple of years ago, I gave myself the opportunity to explore other cities and countries. In South America, countries like Peru and Ecuador, I meet interesting persons from whose I learned the art of printing on garment using stencil and screen printing. Since then, I have been improving my printing skills by creating posters and t-shirts designs.

I am not one like those people that can go for a whole day without doing anything. I have to be involved in something that will help me improve myself. Therefore I have become a person who is motivated in learning new things every day. It's embedded in my soul, the necessity of being outdoors and explores my surroundings. I always looking around for interesting things, I observe and take notes of things others overlook. By observing my environments and talking with people, I am able to expand my knowledge. However, all my observation and listening would be unexploited if it didn't lead to a solution. I look at every problem or difficulty, as an opportunity to find a solution that will help and inspire people to take action. I no longer wait for the opportunity to come, but to pursuit them. This is the only thing I have to offer; my desire of learning and sharing my experience with others while collaborating to make an idea into action.

Life has taught me many great things. One fundamental idea that has helped me in difficult situations is when I discovered that my only obstacle in my life is nothing more than my weakness. Everyone has some type of impediment that blocks them to reach their goals. I have some obstacles that obstructed me from success. I sometimes lack of punctuality to a meeting a deadline or attending an event. In some occasions I do projects at the last minute, since I get lost in this place where ideas collide with each other. Thus, I found myself having a hard time putting my ideas into action. However I recently became aware that my weaknesses are holding me back from learning and reaching my goals: the only and best way to overcome my weakness is to admit it and do something about it. Therefore I am no longer afraid of losing or admitting my mistakes, now the only thing that keeps me going and motivated is to simply learn more than I did yesterday. I deeply believe that my desire of going forward with my career is stronger than anything, and that I am able to overcome any difficulty.
