Progress Report 1

The first portion of this semester began with a slow start, but I've made progress for the project. One major accomplishment during this first portion was completing the script and Culmination Project Proposal. This milestone not only marked the formal beginning of my project but also provided me with a clear roadmap for the tasks ahead.

In preparation for my project, I've taken steps to ensure I have all the necessary equipment. While I already own some essential equipment, which gave me a head start, I've also identified additional items required to bring my project to function. To address this, I've set out to purchase the remaining equipment.

One significant highlight during this journey was finding a person who is willing to do the voice-over for my project. Despite these achievements, there is one looming challenge that has been a constant concern - the timely arrival of the equipment needed for the shooting phase of my project. Any delay in the arrival of equipment could disrupt my plans for the project's execution. As such, I'm closely monitoring the shipping and delivery process, and I've implemented contingency plans to mitigate potential setbacks.

In conclusion, the first part of this semester may have started slowly, but I've successfully completed my project proposal, script, secured the necessary equipment, and found a person for the voice-over. While challenges may come ahead, I'm confident in my ability to adapt and overcome them. I'm excited to see my Culmination Project take shape in the coming weeks.
