Progress Report 2

During the second portion of this semester, significant progress was made in my Culmination Project. One of the major accomplishments during this phase was successfully shooting the interview and editing the footage. Additionally, I received the voice-over recording from the individual I had asked earlier, and I edited it for my project. Another notable achievement during this period was the shooting of scenes around Central Park. This location adds a unique and captivating element to my project, and how these visuals will contribute to the final product. However, like any project, challenges did arise. The weather posed a significant obstacle, making it impossible to shoot in Central Park as planned. This unexpected setback forced me to rethink and adjust my project timeline. Flexibility and adaptability are essential in the project, and I am confident that I can overcome this challenge by revising my plans and making the necessary adjustments.

In summary, despite the weather-related setback, the second part of this semester has been marked by significant progress. The interview footage has been shot and edited, the voice-over has been completed, and I've captured valuable scenes around Central Park. I am continuing to work toward my Culmination Project, and I am eager to see my project evolve in the weeks to come.
