

Yinghe Zhao Final Project

I created this T-shirt to tell others who am I in society. The front of the T-shirt expresses who am I, and the back of the T-shirt expresses what kind of person I am. The background color of the T-shirt is the same as the original color. I did not change it because I like white color clothes without too many adornments/ornaments.

The front of the T-shirt, the dragon on the top left represents the year I was born, which can also infer my age. Poached egg on the top right, is my nickname, my cousin based on my first name “He (荷)” named me this nickname. Aquarius symbols on the bottom mean I was born in February. The lotus embroidery in the middle represents my other nickname. In Chinese, “He” does not mean male, it pronounces hé, which means lotus. I love embroidery, it symbolizes that I am a patient person. On the left side of the embroidery is an hourglass, the hourglass does not express time here, but expresses that I am a person who likes to recall the past. Anyone who has read my book, lovely memories, knows that I am a nostalgic person.

The back of the T-shirt, the Boba tea on the top left, and durian on the top right shows that I am a foodie. There are some kitchen utensils in the middle. In my spare time, I like to cook at home. I am the chef in my family and I cook almost every day. But I really enjoy cooking, and the inspiration for this t-shirt came while I was cooking. The bottom left and bottom right are volleyball and badminton, which symbolizes that I am a sporty person because I often play volleyball and badminton. I was on the school volleyball team when I was in elementary school in China.
