Dear Hiring Manager:

I write this letter of recommendation for Ying Li RN, in support of her pursuit of employment as a registered nurse in your organization.

I met Ying at New York City College of Technology in Spring 2016, when she enrolled in Psychiatric and Mental Health Nursing during her third semester. This course is a requirement for successful completion of the Associate in Applied Science in Nursing degree. I became an academic advisor during that semester.

While enrolled in the course Ying was actively engaged in discussion each class, relating personal and clinical experiences with concepts analyzed. She successfully completed the course and demonstrated academic excellence and rigor. She was consistently punctual in time and attendance. In January 2017, Ying graduated from NYCCT and passed the NCLEX licensing examination soon after. She immediately applied to the RN to BS program at the college and enrolled in Leadership and the Management of Nursing Care, a course I teach. I again found her an engaged and a serious student. Ying is on track to graduate May 2019.

I find Ying to be passionate, enthusiastic and very motivated to learn. If I can be of any further assistance, do not hesitate to contact me at [REDACTED]. It is with great pleasure that I write this letter.

Sincerely,
