

Zayd Sanders
Assignment #7

There have been a few meetings at Sesame Workshop while I was there. They were mainly small meetings or show and tell presentations that the staff randomly gets chosen to do. There was one meeting with everyone from my department and I didn't know what to expect at first. As soon as I get into the meeting room there's a huge bowl of Sour Patch Kids, popcorn, chips, and soda. It was probably one of the most laid back things that I've ever seen.

One of the best things that happened in that meeting is that I was mentioned with another intern that I worked with. The meeting was just a check in to see where we all were with the projects. At the time I was fixing and creating character runs for the Guy Smiley show. It's basically a talk show where the host Guy Smiley has different word characters come on to the show and he uses the words in sentences. All of the words have different types of walks, jumps, and runs.
