

JOURNAL 2

I still haven't started yet however I will be this coming Tuesday at 10am. I'm a combination of excited, nervous and worried. Excited to start my first job in the field. Nervous because I'm afraid of fudging it up. Worried I'm going to forget something between tracking my hours 3 times, my payroll twice and one sheet BTTIP gave me that I'm still confused about. The calendar idea was a good call after all. I never needed one before this semester. Now it's my daily go-to for what's due.

Other than that I don't have anything else "internship" related to speak of for now. As far as other classes go, I have Senior Project, Portfolio and Vector Art Editing to work on as well. Fun! Well....actually it is. Work heavy as it is, I like all myclasses. So far. Many people think I'm nuts. That's nothing new but I didn't have much of a choice. My weakness is a mixed cocktail of laziness and procrastination. Either way this will be one hell of a semester for me. But that goes back to the whole calendar thing. I got a B+ last semester in Web 3. I actually completely forgot to submit something that had been due when the semester started so it's possible the grade could have been higher. There's going to be no "Oops, I forgot" moments this semester. It doesn't benefit anyone, including myself.

Anyway I'm off to do other homework due this week. Have a good week, everyone!