

This art represents who I am, its simple but complex when trying to understand this art. It's symbolic each color having its own meaning even the whole thing itself has its meaning what you can see maybe simple but has a whole lot more into them. The blue represents cool, calm a sense of flow and speed which generally represents who I am. The dark red represents the dark past and dark side of me that is hidden but parts is shown in the light. The gray represents me being a mystery and have a unsure future but is slowly coming to light. The symbols have their own meaning the blue one represents speed keep moving forward and life. The red represents a sense of dark power and death. the white represents wisdom and hidden mystery.

