Halloween

Waking up on Halloween happy but, my mom tells me I cant wear my chucky costume because, they will be a lot of little kids and she does not want for them to get scared. I sit on my bed and procrastinating about what I should do, and then I decide what I want to wear, get my costume ready and make it to the party. Soon as I get there I see my friends are there and 3 of them have the same costume as me. Star wars troopers was a trend that year, we made it to the living room where a laser war was going on, after a bit wile I was eating my burger my friend called asked me if I was going to his party, so I ran out I was running late. Got to his crib, changed into my chucky costume and made it to the living room where a crazy rave looking party was going on.
