Preface

Dear Teacher and Student,

26 Steps is both the same as, and different from, its first edition published in 1973. As its author, I am the same and different, too, and the changes in us are deeply related.

I am grateful to the people who made possible the first edition: Christina Bratt Paulston and Gerald Dykstra, from whom I learned controlled composition at Teachers College, Columbia University; Robert R. Viscount, my co-author of Write Me a Ream, a controlled composition text for adult job training; and the members of Language Innovations, Inc. (LINC), who wrote several of the early passages and published the first edition on a not-for-profit basis. Those people believed, as I do, that students can learn from and enjoy writing practice that takes the form of whole compositions while concentrating essentially on one feature of English grammar, sentence structure, or vocabulary at a time.

Also in 1973, I began to study the philosophy which would revolutionize my life and teaching, the Aesthetic Realism of Eli Siegel. Mr. Siegel was the first person to state this principle:

The purpose of education is to like the world through knowing it.

The way to like the world, he explained, is to see how it is made, how it is a oneness of opposites making for beauty, as shown in art as well as in every subject studied in school. Aesthetic Realism is taught at the Aesthetic Realism Foundation, a not-for-profit educational foundation based in New York City.

Studying Aesthetic Realism has explained and affirmed the best things I was doing in my teaching and writing and changed the things I could not be proud of. In 26 Steps, for example, I see a relation of sameness and change that is reassuring yet challenging to students; there is so much of a passage that is already complete and correct together with a closely related group of changes. And the relatedness of these changes shows some of the logic and beauty of English. English, like all languages, shows the structure of the world in how it puts together opposites; vowels and consonants, masculine and feminine, singular and plural, past and present tenses, direct and indirect speech, active and passive voice, negative and affirmative statements, pre- and post-modifiers, dependent and independent clauses. It is these opposites that students work on as they move from step to step in the book.

Through my study of Aesthetic Realism, I am questioning and changing the way I see the world, and one result is the changing content of 26 Steps. Nearly half of the original passages have been replaced altogether, and many others have been altered on behalf of greater fairness to, and accuracy about, people and things in the world. I am proud of passages added in 1979 and 1987, like "Old Is Beautiful," "A Good Friend," and one based on a student composition, "Fire and I"; at the same time I am questioning old standbys like "Cancerians" and "Capricornians," which work well grammatically but are simply untrue. I would like further changes in 26 Steps, as well as other grammar books I plan to write, to be accurate in form and content because people learning English and working to improve their English deserve both.

So while 26 Steps cannot be called an Aesthetic Realism textbook, it is one at its best influenced by Aesthetic Realism. I look forward to a time in the near future when teachers know this kind and true philosophy and when their textbooks reflect it; when a grammar class might begin: "As we study active and passive voice, class, we'll try to see how other things in the world are active and passive, too, and how we are...and the purpose of this class is to like the whole world more."

What Controlled Composition Is and Is Not

Controlled composition is a set of model passages with accompanying instructions (called steps) that provide sequential, highly structured practice of grammar points, proofreading, sentence combining and vocabulary building without a lot of technical terminology. It is not free writing. It will not help students develop and organize their ideas, gather information or organize a point. But it will make them think about what they put on a sheet of paper. It will make them pay attention to details. Most important, it will give them a sheaf of good-looking, 90–100% correct, full-size compositions that they can be proud of. And much as teachers often extol the virtues of mistakes and what we can learn from them, students love perfection. Controlled composition gives them periodic perfection, which they work for and earn.

From a teacher's point of view, controlled composition is individualized, high-volume backup writing; it is fast to get into and mark, and students like it, so they progress swiftly and can see their progress because the steps are numbered. These features have made controlled composition popular around the world for more than 30 years.

Who 26 Steps Is For

26 Steps contains 52 model passages designed for high school, college, and adult bilingual students with basic English fluency and at least intermediate-level writing proficiency. Beginners should use the companion volume to 26 Steps, Brookes and Withrow's 10 Steps.

How to Use This Text

26 Steps can be used with a whole class or individuals, in a regular classroom or in a lab, under a teacher's supervision or a tutor's. If a whole class is to use the text, do this introductory lesson:

1. Copy the Demonstration Passage (on page vii) on the board making two or three errors in spelling, capitalization, or punctuation. Ask students if they think a person can make mistakes just copying, and how. Have them proofread the composition—that is, read it very carefully in search of errors. Underline each error found.
2. When all errors have been found, ask students to copy the passage from the board or from their books with the corrections but with none of the superscript sentence numbers. They can look at the sample compositions on page viii and should consciously choose manuscript or cursive form.
3. As students finish, move around swiftly and mark each composition only up to the first error. Underline it and write at the top of the paper, "Do another Step 1." If there are no errors, write, "Go on to Step 2." Explain to students that ordinarily they would go on to a different model passage, that right now everyone is going to do the other steps on page vii together. These other steps—2, 3, 4, 7, and 24—can be done orally or can be written out on the board by different students. Either way, the objectives are (a) to get across the ideas of model passages, steps, and proofreading; (b) to have students see the effect of English grammatical ties causing many changes from one change; and (c) to accustom them to a fast way of getting feedback and moving on.
4. When students seem comfortable with the procedures, have them find the model passage called "The Light-Fingered Elephant" alphabetically. (It happens that this passage is close to the middle of the book, and you will be able to tell whether some students are not accustomed to finding things this way.) Be sure students read the step instructions carefully and do only Step 1. They should also get into the habit of using loose leaf (instead of notebook) paper and writing their complete name, the date, and the step number in the upper right corner. Skipping lines is part of the step instruction.

Introduction

- 5. When students finish, have them record their work on the Student Record Sheet on page 53. Then mark their compositions, either to the first error only or, if time allows, to the end. This time even one error has a student move horizontally to another Step 1 using a different model passage. Use the Sequence of Passages on Each Step on page 55 to determine what passage to assign next. A student's composition with your marks might look like this:

3 errors ○	Do another Step 1, "Coffee Breakthrough" Student's name January 18, 1996 Step 1
	The Light-Fingued elephant
→	Petal, the Philadelphia Zoo's 15-year-old African elephant, thought zookeeper Ed Recotta had some candy in his pocket. Many zookeepers do carry candy, and

Some More Ideas to Help You

You can, of course, use your own marking symbols, but it is essential not to correct errors. Many students will stand over a teacher's shoulder as he reads and spot things a split second before an error is marked. The proofing gets passionate, and this seems to be a good thing.

Sometimes students who are moving along nicely are staggered when they do the first Step 4 because of the large numbers of singular-plural changes needed. In this edition for the first time, you can assign students a Step 4a and 4b if needed. There are also a and b steps after the first Step 5.

Students relish moving step by step, but it is also possible to use steps out of order to back up your grammar, vocabulary, and sentence combining work. The Sequence of Passages on Each Step tells you the kind of practice each step entails, and the general groupings are copy and substitution (Steps 1 and 2), gender and number changes (Steps 3-5), tenses (Steps 6-10), sequence of tenses and direct and reported speech (Steps 11-14), active and passive voice (Steps 15 and 16), negation (Step 17), vocabulary (Steps 18-22), and sentence combining (Steps 23-26).

Some teachers have found that students like to discuss the topics in the model passages. Many of the passages have to do with culture and life-style, and rumor has it that some passages have provoked heated discussions and lively free writing. Experiment and enjoy!

In the Street

<sup>1</sup>There is a police officer in the street. <sup>2</sup>She is stopping traffic. <sup>3</sup>There is a car at the corner. <sup>4</sup>It looks like a Volkswagen. <sup>5</sup>There is a boy on the sidewalk. <sup>6</sup>He is riding his bicycle. <sup>7</sup>The bicycle is a two-wheeler.

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage above from the title to the last word, but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write. (If you are not sure how your composition should look, turn over to page viii.)
2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word car to auto (sentence 3).
3. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words a boy to a girl (sentence 5).
4. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words a boy to two boys (sentence 5).
7. Rewrite the entire passage, but start with the word Yesterday. This means you will be writing your composition in the past tense.
24. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 3 and 4 and sentences 5 and 6 using the word who or which.

The American Eagle

<sup>4</sup>The bald eagle has a wingspan (that is, the distance from the tip of one wing to the tip of other) of seven feet. <sup>5</sup>The size and shape of the wings makes it possible for an eagle to glide gracefully on a wind current for a long time. <sup>6</sup>When the eagle sees small animals on the ground, it swoops down and grabs them. <sup>7</sup>It has huge claws, called talons, to hold rabbits or even small sheep while flying and to tear big pieces of meat when it lands and eats.

<sup>8</sup>Everyone loves to see the beauty of an eagle in flight. <sup>9</sup>Maybe it makes people think of freedom. <sup>10</sup>Do you think this bird is a good symbol for the U.S.?

Steps

4a. Step 4 is difficult because English grammar makes a very big deal of singular and plural. You have to show whether you are writing about one thing or many things in the subject of a sentence, the verb, the pronouns, etc. So this step, Step 4a, is meant to help you by asking you to change only some of those things. It also gives you some examples of singular-plural changes. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words The eagle or an eagle to eagles wherever they appear. Your first paragraph will be as follows:

Bald eagles represent the United States of America. These very large birds of prey appear on the seal of the U.S. and on U.S. express mail packages. They symbolize power, speed, and grace.

Note: You don't have to change sentence 9 because the word it can mean the sight of the eagle. But every other sentence has at least two changes.

Examples of Singular-Plural Changes

Singular:	A foreign student has to work hard because he is studying in his second language.
Plural:	Foreign students have to work hard because they are studying in their second language.
Singular:	A foreign student's teacher should help him build confidence in himself.
Plural:	Foreign students' teachers should help them build confidence in themselves.
Singular:	This student makes his country proud of him. His family is proud, too.
Plural:	These students make their countries proud of them. Their families are proud, too.

Antibilingualism

<sup>12</sup>Maybe the new English-only laws do not affect people's lives in a day-to-day way. <sup>13</sup>But they have an emotional effect. <sup>14</sup>This effect increases the separation among different language groups.

Steps

8. Pretend that all these things are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage in the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Do not change the first paragraph or sentence 9 or the quotation in sentence 11. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Right now we are seeing a basic change in the country's attitude toward bilingualism.

10. Pretend that all these things have happened recently. Rewrite the entire passage in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before every main verb. Do not change the first paragraph or sentence 9 or the quotation in sentence 11. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Recently we have seen a basic change in the country's attitude toward bilingualism.

24. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 6 and 7, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 10 and 11, and sentences 13 and 14 with words like who, which, whose and where. Remember that sometimes you must put one sentence inside the other to make the new sentence sound correct. The first paragraph will begin as follows:

The sixties and seventies were the decades of bilingualism, which can be defined as the idea that government should provide education and services in languages other than English.

<sup>1</sup>Federico Alvear, a 57-year-old lawyer from Venezuela, says that he owns the moon and has a deed to prove it. <sup>2</sup>He points out that the law in his country permits anyone to take ownership of property that has not already been claimed. <sup>3</sup>In 1953 he claimed the moon and obtained a deed.

<sup>4</sup>Mr. Alvear wants to meet the astronauts who have explored the moon. <sup>5</sup>He says he will give them official permission to continue these expeditions of importance. <sup>6</sup>He will also discuss with them possibilities for settlements on the moon.

<sup>7</sup>Mr. Alvear goes on to say that he has not paid any taxes on his property. <sup>8</sup>Several years ago, he was asked to pay, but he said he did not know the value of the land. <sup>9</sup>He suggested that some tax officials with plenty of courage go and survey the moon themselves.

<sup>10</sup>Mr. Alvear feels that his claim, which was once treated as a joke among his neighbors, is serious business. <sup>11</sup>He says that many people have called him crazy, but no one has called him stupid.

Steps

11. Pretend that you are writing in the year 2025 and reporting something that happened a short while ago. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense beginning with the following sentence:

Recently Federico Alvear, a 57-year-old lawyer from Venezuela, said that he owned the moon and had a deed to prove it.

14. Rewrite the entire passage changing all reported speech to direct speech. You must decide what the speaker's exact words are and put quotation marks around them. Your first paragraph will be as follows:

Federico Alvear, a 57-year-old lawyer from Venezuela, says, "I own the moon and have a deed to prove it. The law in my country permits anyone to take ownership of property that has not already been claimed. In 1953 I claimed the moon and obtained a deed."

19. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases and causes to a shorter form that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: from Venezuela (sentence 1), that has not already been claimed (sentence 2), of importance (sentence 5), with plenty of courage (sentence 9), and among his neighbors (sentence 10).

Block Associations

<sup>9</sup>Naturally, some residents ignored these activities. <sup>10</sup>However, pressure from the neighborhood began to draw more and more people into the associations, and many residents found this involvement a pleasure.

Steps

8. Pretend that all these things are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage in the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Begin with the following sentence:

Right now residents of New York City are taking action to solve their problems of safety and sanitation.

10. Pretend that all these things have happened recently. Rewrite the entire passage in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before every main verb. Your first sentence will be as follows:

During the past several years, residents of New York City have taken action to solve their problems of safety and sanitation.

18. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases to one or two word or a hyphenated word that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: of New York City and of safety and sanitation (sentence 1), at self-renewal (sentence 3), of the association and during the nighttime (sentence 4), to buildings (sentence 5), of two persons (sentence 7), and from the neighborhood (sentence 10). Your first sentence will be as follows:

Several years ago, New York City residents took action to solve their safety and sanitation problems.

Blockbusters

<sup>1</sup>What makes movies blockbusters? <sup>2</sup>What makes it so difficult for Hollywood producers to predict which films will be blockbusters and which will be miserable flops? <sup>3</sup>If anyone knows the answer, speak up now and spare us all the awful movies that come out each year!

<sup>4</sup>Maybe blockbusters have the right relation of opposites: thought and action, tension and release, reality and imagination. <sup>5</sup>They make us worried or scared for a while, but then they let us sit back and say with relief, "Wow!" or "Thank God!" <sup>6</sup>They never drag. <sup>7</sup>They move as fast as our understanding and emotions can keep up.

<sup>8</sup>Think about blockbusters you've seen like "Terminator 2" or "E.T." or "The Lion King." <sup>9</sup>Such movies can be as fantastic as science-fiction or talking lions, but they must have characters, challenges, and successes we can recognize and identify with. <sup>10</sup>Somehow we have to be able to see ourselves in blockbusters.

Steps

5a. Step 5 is difficult for the same reason that step 4 is: because English grammar makes a very big deal of singular and plural. Step 5a, like step 4a, is meant to help you by asking you to change only some of the many things that show one and many grammatically. It also gives you some examples of plural-singular changes. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words blockbusters to a blockbuster wherever it appears. Your first paragraph will be as follows:

What makes a movie a blockbuster? What makes it so difficult for Hollywood producers to predict which film will be a blockbuster and which will be a miserable flop? If anyone knows the answer, speak up now and spare us all the awful movies that come out each year!

Note: You must also change words that mean the same thing or are directly related to the word blockbuster, like movie or film.

Examples of Plural-Singular Changes

Plural: Personal computers have changed the way we work, study, and live.
Singular: The personal computer has changed the way we work, study, and live.

Plural: These electronic wonders give their owners a tremendous advantage.
Singular: This electronic wonder gives its owner a tremendous advantage.

Plural: Computers' prices are high, but they pay for themselves in time saved.
Singular: A computer's price is high, but it pays for itself in time saved.

Blue Collar

<sup>2</sup>They come home from work, open a can of beer, sit down, and start complaining about work, money, and demands made by minority groups.

<sup>8</sup>If blue-collar workers complain, there are some good reasons. <sup>9</sup>Their bosses tell them that they are the laborers with the highest pay in history. <sup>10</sup>But the workers look around and see that the gap between the rich and the poor is wider than ever.

<sup>11</sup>They feel that the government has ignored them in favor of welfare clients and the interests of corporations. <sup>12</sup>Blue-collar workers consider themselves forgotten people.

Steps

5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words blue-collar workers to the blue-collar worker wherever they appear. You will be writing about one person instead of many, and you can call the person “he,” or “she,” but once you choose one of those words, you must stick with it throughout your composition.

According to an American stereotype, the blue-collar worker is a person with little formal education who uses his muscles instead of his brains to earn a living.

Note: This step requires more than 40 changes. If you have a lot of difficulty, your teacher or tutor can assign you a Step 5a, which is similar but easier.

7. Pretend that you are writing fifty years from now when the image of blue-collar workers has changed. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense beginning with the following sentence:

According to a stereotype of the last century, blue-collar workers were people with little formal education who used their muscles instead of their brains to earn a living.

20. Change the underlined phrases and clauses to one or two words or to hyphenated words. Then place the new word(s) in front of the noun that the phrase or clause originally followed: made by minority groups (sentence 2), which has wide acceptance (sentence 3), of families (sentence 7), with the highest pay (sentence 9), and of corporations (sentence 11).

Bureaucracy

<sup>8</sup>In a full-grown bureaucracy, bosses seldom trust workers. <sup>9</sup>They require their workers to clock in. <sup>10</sup>They forget people's names. <sup>11</sup>Memos replace face-to-face communication. <sup>12</sup>Mountains of paperwork reduce efficiency. <sup>13</sup>Managers divide labor into small bits. <sup>14</sup>The workers themselves do not see the final results of their labor. <sup>15</sup>This situation, in turn, affects their attitudes. <sup>16</sup>They say to themselves, "Why bother? I'm just a cog in a machine."

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
15. Rewrite the entire passage changing all sentences except sentence 16 from the active voice to the passive voice. This means that you will have to "reverse" each sentence as in the example below:

Active:	The dog	bit	the man.
Passive:	The man	was bitten	by the dog.

Do you see how the object of the verb in the active sentence becomes the subject of the passive sentence? Also, the verb changes to a form of be + participle, and it must agree with the new subject (singular-singular or plural-plural). The "old" subject appears at or near the end of the sentence in a by-phrase, but if it seems unnecessary, that by-phrase can be left out as in the example below:

Active:	The police	arrested	the thief.
Passive:	The thief	was arrested.	by the police

In this composition, your first two sentences will be as follows:

Bureaucracies are not created by an evil force. They are created by human beings.

Cancerians

<sup>1</sup>A Cancerian, who is someone born between June 21 and July 21, has certain characteristics. <sup>2</sup>Born under the sign of the Crab, he is a person who loves peace. <sup>3</sup>He has a quiet, sensitive, and gentle nature. <sup>4</sup>However, he is able to defend himself if necessary. <sup>5</sup>His memory is excellent, and he enjoys research into history. <sup>6</sup>When he makes plans, he sees them through tenaciously.

<sup>7</sup>Although a Cancerian prefers a life of solitude, he excels in work where he can care for others. <sup>8</sup>People trust him more than he trusts himself. <sup>9</sup>In love, he is protective, sacrificing, and romantic. <sup>10</sup>He seeks and needs security in anything having to do with the emotions. <sup>11</sup>He enjoys chores around the house and makes a responsible parent.

<sup>12</sup>A Cancerian's weaknesses are timidity, moodiness, and feelings of inferiority. <sup>13</sup>He sometimes experiences fears without reason. <sup>14</sup>He has to avoid stress and learn the art of relaxation of the muscles. <sup>15</sup>Because of these traits, yoga and meditation are useful pastimes for him.

Steps

3. Rewrite the entire passage adding the word woman after the word Cancerian wherever it appears. This means you will be writing about a woman throughout your composition. Be sure to put the apostrophe in the correct place in sentence 12. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

A Cancerian woman, who is someone born between June 21 and July 21, has certain characteristics. Born under the sign of the Crab, she is a person who loves peace.

6. Pretend that this passage is a prediction about the future of a newborn baby. Rewrite the entire passage in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. Your first sentence will be as follows:

If a baby is born between June 21 and July 21, he will be a Cancerian and (will) have certain characteristics.

19. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases and clauses to a shorter form that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: who loves peace (sentence 2), of solitude (sentence 7), in anything having to do with the emotions (sentence 10), around the house (sentence 11), without reason (sentence 13), and of the muscles (sentence 14).

Capricornians

<sup>8</sup>Capricornians approach love and marriage in the same way as they approach business. <sup>9</sup>They make faithful marriage partners. <sup>10</sup>However, they do not make passionate lovers. <sup>11</sup>They expect their spouses' commitment to be as strong as their own. <sup>12</sup>Unfortunately, they have a tendency to keep their emotions to themselves. <sup>13</sup>For this reason, they sometimes seem cold and unfeeling.

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word Capricornians to a Capricornian wherever it appears. You will be writing about one Capricornian instead of many, and you can call the person "he," or "she," but once you choose one of those words, you must stick with it throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

A Capricornian is a person who was born under the zodiac sign of the Goat (December 21 to January 19).

23. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 3 and 4, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 9 and 10, and sentences 12 and 13 with the words and, but, or so. Leave out the word However in sentence 10 and the words For this reason in sentence 13.

Note: Make your new sentences as clear and concise as possible. If you join two sentences that have the same subject (or some other part), do not repeat the subject (or that part) in the new sentence.

Central Park

<sup>14</sup>Hundreds of people walk, talk, sunbathe, or just sit around on the benches. <sup>15</sup>The benches begin to look like subway seats with all the crowding. <sup>16</sup>No one objects. <sup>17</sup>Everyone has too much fun to complain.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words problems to troubles, (sentence 2), sweat to appetite (sentence 6), army to troop (sentence 7,) Jamaican to West Indian and ear-catching to lively (sentence 10), eager to enthusiastic (sentence 11), animals to pets (sentence 13), and look like to resemble (sentence 15). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.

8. Pretend that all the things in the passage above are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage in the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Begin with the following sentence:

24. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 10 and 11, sentences 12 and 13, and sentences 14 and 15 using words like who, which, where, and that. Remember that sometimes you must put one sentence inside the other to make the new sentence correct. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Every Sunday during the summer, Central Park, where people enjoy themselves and forget about their own and the city's problems, comes alive.

Changing Roles

<sup>1</sup>Is there any reason to be optimistic about marriage and the family in America?

<sup>2</sup>The answer is yes, and the main reason is that many changes are taking place in the roles of husbands and wives.

<sup>8</sup>The husband's role is changing, too. <sup>9</sup>He is beginning to realize that work should not be the most important thing in his life. <sup>10</sup>He understands that he must share family responsibilities if he wants to be an equal partner. <sup>11</sup>The idea of washing dishes and changing diapers does not bother him, and he does not consider himself henpecked for doing what is sometimes called women's work.

Steps

4. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word wife to wives and the word husband to husbands wherever they appear. This means that you will be writing about many wives and many husbands instead of just one throughout your composition.

Wives are not satisfied with the idea that they will be staying home the rest of their lives.

10. Pretend that all these changes have happened recently. Rewrite the entire passage in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before the main verb. Do not change every verb; some of the verbs in subordinate clauses should be left alone. Your first paragraph will be as follows:

Is there any reason to be optimistic about marriage and the family in America? The answer is yes, and the main reason is that many changes have taken place in the roles of husbands and wives.

21. Rewrite the entire passage using the words below to replace two or more words in the sentences indicated.

sentence 3: prospect sentence 7: self-reliance

sentence 9: paramount

sentence 4: childcare

sentence 7: crucial sentence 11: so-called

Sentence 3 will be as follows:

The wife is not satisfied with the prospect of staying home the rest of her life.

Coffee Breakthrough

<sup>7</sup>"Mr. Ames told me that I would have to make coffee for him every morning," said the 22-year-old Ms. Reed, "but I refused. <sup>8</sup>I don't feel that making coffee is part of my job."

<sup>9</sup>Mr. Ames insisted he was not being unreasonable. <sup>10</sup>He simply wanted his coffee. <sup>11</sup>The personnel director asked him why he couldn't make it himself. <sup>12</sup>"I can," he answered, "but my time is too valuable for things like that."

<sup>13</sup>The director felt that both employees' time was too valuable for making coffee. <sup>14</sup>He suggested that they send a messenger to the cafeteria. <sup>15</sup>He added, "I just hope that we can still find a messenger who doesn't feel it's beneath his—or her—dignity to run errands."

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, including the title but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
26. Rewrite the entire passage. Combine sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 7 and 8, sentences 9 and 10, and sentences 13, 14, and 15 in the shortest and clearest way possible. Do not change or leave out any information about your topic. Sentence 1 will be as follows:

Tina Reed, an executive assistant in a large advertising firm, challenged her boss on a small but important issue last week.

<sup>8</sup>How will colleges be seen in the years to come? <sup>9</sup>How will the arts and sciences be brought together? <sup>10</sup>The marriage of the classical and the practical can be accomplished only if college subjects are used to make sense of the whole world. <sup>11</sup>For example, poetry can explain both love and hate; history can tell us how to live in the present. <sup>12</sup>College life should be real life, not an escape from it or a narrow preparation for it.

Steps

- 16. Rewrite the entire passage except sentences 11 and 12 in the active voice. Look for the word by to find the subject for each new sentence or part of the new sentence. If you do not find the word by, think of a new subject that would be logical. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Years ago, people saw colleges as ivy-covered centers of knowledge with little practical value.

- 19. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases and clauses to a shorter form that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: with little practical value (sentence 1), for education and of social status and economics (sentence 2), oriented toward jobs (sentence 5), without residences (sentence 7), and to come (sentence 8).

Detectives

<sup>5</sup>For one thing, a detective solves crimes, and other grown-ups do not. <sup>6</sup>Other grown-ups live with crime and complain. <sup>7</sup>Second, a detective has a mission with multiple purposes: to look for, to find, and to turn over the criminals to the authorities. <sup>8</sup>He is both an idealist and a realist. <sup>9</sup>He thinks he can improve the world of every day by catching a murderer, but he knows that improvement lasts only until the next crime. <sup>10</sup>He also knows right from wrong and acts on the difference. <sup>11</sup>At the same time, he lives in mystery with style. <sup>12</sup>Perhaps that mystery is his greatest appeal.

<sup>13</sup>Very few people are cut out to be detectives. <sup>14</sup>I found out quite early that I was not one of them. <sup>15</sup>Now I walk the streets late at night, knowing that the person following me is the detective of my imagination.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words canteloupe to eggplant (sentence 2), multiple to several (sentence 7), idealist to romantic (sentence 8), murderer to killer (sentence 9), cut out to suited (sentence 13), found out to discovered (sentence 14), and imagination to mind (sentence 15). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.
4. Rewrite the entire composition changing only the second paragraph. In that paragraph change the words a detective to detectives wherever they appear. This means that you will be writing about many detectives instead of just one throughout your composition. The first sentence in your second paragraph will be as follows:

For one thing, detectives solve crimes, and other grown-ups do not.

18. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases to one or two words or a hyphenated word that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: on TV (sentence 1), with my suit (sentence 2), with multiple purposes (sentence 7), of every day (sentence 9), and late at night (sentence 15). Remember to change a plural noun to its singular form if it precedes another noun. Your first sentence will be as follows:

When I was nine years old, I imagined that I was every TV detective.

Don't Run Away

<sup>1</sup>Recently, while walking in the park, I happened to cross the finish line of a marathon race for nonprofessional runners. <sup>2</sup>I was curious about the runners' motivations, so I decided to ask them what made them run. <sup>3</sup>Here is what each person said:

An accountant: <sup>4</sup>It's a simple matter of keeping my body in as good condition as possible. <sup>5</sup>If I don't run, my middle will spread like jello.

A philosopher: <sup>6</sup>How else can one put together mind and body, pain and pleasure so simply? <sup>7</sup>Running is a way of bringing inner conflict to an end.

A musician: <sup>8</sup>Running has made it possible for me to hear the rhythm of my own body.

An adventurer: <sup>9</sup>I think anyone who has reached adulthood will seek new challenges.

An actress: <sup>10</sup>I'm more aware of my body in a close and familiar way. <sup>11</sup>Running helps me be more expressive in my acting.

A housewife: <sup>12</sup>My therapist is always telling me not to run away from minor fears and worries—just to run!

Steps

- 12. Rewrite the entire passage in two paragraphs using reported speech. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

An accountant said that it was a simple matter of keeping his body in as good condition as possible.

- 13. Rewrite the entire passage changing each portion of dialog into a separate paragraph of direct speech. Remember to add quotation marks, commas and phrases such as An accountant said to your composition. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

An accountant said, "It's a simple matter of keeping my body in as good condition as possible."

- 22. Rewrite the entire passage condensing the sentences indicated by replacing several words in each with one of the word forms below:

sentence 1: amateur/amateurs sentence 9: mature/matured/maturity sentence 4: fit/fitness sentence 10: intimate/intimately sentence 7: resolving/resolution sentence 12: anxious/anxiously/anxiety

Sentence 1 will be as follows:

Recently, while walking in the park, I happened to cross the finish line of a marathon race for amateurs.

Steps

- 4b. This step, Step 4b, asks you to change most of the thing that must be singular or plural in English. Rewrite the entire passage changing the name Juan Cuellar to Juan Cuellar and Rafael Lopez wherever it appears. This means you will be writing about two men—both Mexican, both married, etc.—throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Juan Cuellar and Rafael Lopez, Mexican immigrants, work at Izzy's Deli in Los Angeles.

- 21. Rewrite the entire passage using the words below to replace two or more words in the indicated sentences.

sentence 3: Hispanic	sentence 6: culinary	sentence 8: extensive sentence 4: mimicking	sentence 7: native	sentence 10: avoiding

Remember to add a small word if necessary to make the new word fit in correctly.

Sentence 3 will be as follows:

He is part of the 67% of Los Angeles cooks who are Hispanic.

or

<sup>14</sup>To top off all the confusion, the fire engine was held up by the traffic jam. <sup>15</sup>The firemen yelled and motioned. <sup>16</sup>Everybody gave orders. <sup>17</sup>Nobody paid attention. <sup>18</sup>What a mess!

Steps

8. Pretend that all these things are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage in the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Begin with the following sentence:

At this moment, a fire alarm is ringing in a very small town.

10. Pretend that all these things have happened recently. Rewrite the entire passage in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before every main verb. Your first sentence will be as follows:

A fire alarm has just rung in a very small town.

23. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 6, 7, and 8, sentences 9 and 10, sentences 12 and 13, and sentences 15, 16 and 17 with the words and, but, or so. Make your new sentences as clear and concise as possible. Your first sentence will be as follows:

A fire alarm rang in a very small town, and suddenly everything went haywire.

Fire and I

<sup>1</sup>I have seen that fire and I have a lot in common. <sup>2</sup>I can show this to be true by means of the opposite qualities we share: assertion and yielding, beauty and ugliness.

<sup>3</sup>Fire is both assertive and yielding, and so am I. <sup>4</sup>Fire is a powerful force when it burns freely. <sup>5</sup>However, it must yield to water or a shortage of oxygen. <sup>6</sup>I am a normal, healthy individual. <sup>7</sup>Therefore, I have physical and emotional strength. <sup>8</sup>I assert myself in an argument and in my work. <sup>9</sup>But I have weaknesses, too. <sup>10</sup>One of these is yielding to the colorful temptations around me in city life.

<sup>18</sup>Everything in nature is related. <sup>19</sup>Everything shares the opposites. <sup>20</sup>I feel less alone, more at peace with the world, through seeing this.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words seen to noticed (sentence 1), show to demonstrate (sentence 2), powerful to imposing (sentence 4), shortage to absence (sentence 5), normal to sane (sentence 6), argument to dispute (sentence 8), going off to exploding (sentence 12), house to apartment (sentence 14), ugly to horrible (sentence 15), and moment to instant (sentence 17). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.

5. The passage above is based on a composition written by a student named Kam Sing Au. Rewrite the entire passage using the student's name, Kam Sing Au, each time you start a new paragraph. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Kam Sing Au has seen that he and fire have a lot in common.

25. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 4 and 5, sentences 6 and 7, sentences 9 and 10, sentences 14 and 15, sentences 16 and 17, and sentences 18 and 19 using words like who, which, and whose or although, since, when, and because. Leave out the following words: However (sentence 5), Therefore (sentence 7), sometimes (sentence 14), and Then (sentence 15). Your first sentence will be as follows:

I have seen that fire and I have a lot in common, which I can show to be true by means of the opposite qualities we share: assertion and yielding, beauty and ugliness.

<sup>4</sup>Why are Chinese smoking so much? <sup>5</sup>First, they see images of happy smokers everywhere. <sup>6</sup>The government allows advertisers to promote smoking freely. <sup>7</sup>They can target teenagers as new smokers, and they can package cigarettes without a health warning. <sup>8</sup>Second, smoking is still “cool.” <sup>9</sup>Everybody lights up with a feeling of confidence. <sup>10</sup>A person’s friends may like his habit. <sup>11</sup>Most public places will permit smoking. <sup>12</sup>Finally, almost everybody appears to be unconcerned about smoking and health. <sup>13</sup>Both a smoker and the people around him can argue about the effect of smoke on their lungs. <sup>14</sup>They can ignore the facts.

<sup>15</sup>It is difficult for Chinese to give up smoking. <sup>16</sup>Support groups are hard to find. <sup>17</sup>The law and public opinion support smokers’ rights. <sup>18</sup>Above all, the society as a whole is friendly to the idea of smoking.

Steps

17. Imagine you are writing about the American cigarette market and Americans instead of the Chinese market and Chinese people. Rewrite the entire composition changing each sentence from the affirmative to the negative so that your composition says the opposite of what the model passage says. In some sentences, you can simply add the word not. In others, you will need other negative words like no, no longer, nobody, none, neither ... nor, etc. You may also change to the opposite meaning by changing an adjective the way the second example below does. Your first sentence should be one of the following:

Tobacco growers are not very happy with the American cigarette market.

Tobacco growers are very unhappy with the American cigarette market.

25. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 9 and 10, and sentences 15 and 16 using words like who, which, and where or although, since, when, and because.

A Good Friend

<sup>8</sup>Kindness is also important to him. <sup>9</sup>He wants to understand what the other person is feeling and to respect those feelings. <sup>10</sup>He is always willing to criticize himself when needed, and he makes every effort to avoid sounding smug or self-righteous.

<sup>11</sup>If a friend is both accurate and kind as a critic, everyone respects what he says. <sup>12</sup>His criticism is something like love.

Steps

3. Imagine that the critical friend in the passage is a woman instead of a man. Rewrite the entire passage making the necessary changes. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

Everyone wants a friend who encourages the best in her. Such a friend shows she is interested in strengthening another.

17. Imagine that the person in the passage is not a good friend at all. Rather, he is an uncaring individual who does not encourage or criticize, or if he does criticize, he does it badly. Rewrite the entire composition changing the words a good friend to a bad friend where they appear in the title and in sentence 5. Change each sentence from the affirmative to the negative so that your composition says the opposite of what the model passage says. In some sentences, you can simply add the word not. In others, you will need other negative words like no, no longer, nobody, none, neither ... nor etc. You may also change to the opposite meaning by changing an adjective. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Nobody wants a friend who doesn't encourage the best in him.

Note: In this composition, you do not have to make every verb negative. If a sentence has more than one verb, you should change only the part or parts that make the sentence correct with its new meaning.

<sup>15</sup>Suddenly at sundown, everyone noticed a chill in the air. <sup>16</sup>Deep shadows blanketed the lawn. <sup>17</sup>Lady Marsden finally introduced the mysterious count. <sup>18</sup>Can you guess his name?

Steps

6. Pretend you are a fortune teller telling this story. Rewrite the entire passage except sentence 18 in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. Your first sentence will be as follows:

At midday an air of busy activity will fill the Marsden estate.

9. Rewrite only the second and third paragraphs in the past perfect tense (had + participle). Change the phrases At 3:00 and Through the late afternoon to By 3:00 and By the late afternoon. Your first sentence in the second paragraph will be as follows:

By 3:00 the butler had received the first guests and conducted them to the patio.

15. Rewrite the entire passage changing every sentence except sentences 10, 12, and 18 from the active voice to the passive voice. Your first sentence will be as follows:

At midday the Marsden estate was filled with an air of busy activity.

Hyphenated Americans

<sup>1</sup>When women whose families are from an Asian country grow up in the U.S., they are torn between two cultures. <sup>2</sup>Their original culture teaches them to be passive and hard-working, to do well in school and choose a safe, lucrative career. <sup>3</sup>But in the U.S., such women find themselves tempted by more challenging career opportunities. <sup>4</sup>For example, they might want to become artists, executives, police officers or doctors, and these careers will commit them to lifelong, intense professional involvement.

<sup>5</sup>What should these women do about marriage? <sup>6</sup>Their parents tell them to get married and stop working, but when they see American women who have jobs and a family and even some who do not marry at all, they do not want to give up their own careers and independence.

<sup>7</sup>Everyone should respect Asian-American women who are trying to make peace between their two cultures. <sup>8</sup>It is a difficult job. <sup>9</sup>As quoted in a New York Times article, Yvette Herrera, the daughter of Filipino immigrants and president of the Asian Pacific Women's Network, said, "When you're a hyphenated American, you are kind of creating your own rules."

Steps

- 5b. Step 5b, like Step 4b, asks you to change most of the many thing that show one and many grammatically. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words women to a woman wherever it refers to Asian-American women. Your first sentence will be as follows:

When a woman whose family is from an Asian country grows up in the U.S., she is torn between two cultures.

Remember that you must also change words that mean the same thing or are directly related to the word woman when you are writing about an Asian-American woman.

<sup>1</sup>In many big cities, people own cats. <sup>2</sup>Although cats that live in stores or restaurants are useful for catching rats and mice, cats that live in apartments don't do a thing to earn their living. <sup>3</sup>Why, then, do so many people who live in cities keep cats?

<sup>7</sup>Second, cats are easy to take care of. <sup>8</sup>They don't have to be washed, walked, or licensed, and they seem to be able to entertain themselves during long hours alone. <sup>9</sup>All they need is food, water, and affection supplied on a regular basis.

<sup>10</sup>In spite of all this, cats are not just docile balls of fur. <sup>11</sup>They demand respect. <sup>12</sup>Their swishing tails warn dogs that visit that they are displeased, and they can attack quite viciously. <sup>13</sup>Even in play, cat lovers have to be careful. <sup>14</sup>Although bites from cats are generally just little nips, cats have claws as sharp as razors, and "play" can often draw blood. <sup>15</sup>Some cat owners admit that they like this viciousness; they are glad that cats are not pushovers.

Steps

5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word cats to a cat wherever it appears. You will be writing about one cat instead of many, and you can call the cat "he," "she," or "it," but once you choose one of those words, you must stick with it throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In many big cities, people own a cat.

7. Pretend that you are writing far in the future when cats are no longer kept as pets. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense beginning with the following sentence.

In the twentieth century, people in many big cities owned cats.

20. This step is very similar to Steps 18 and 19, but this time you may need a possessive ending (-'s or -s') or an -ly ending (as in carefully written) to make new words. Rewrite the entire passage changing the underlined phrases and clauses to one or two words or to hyphenated words. Then place the new word(s) in front of the noun that the phrase or clause originally followed: that live in stores and that live in apartments (sentence 2), who live in cities (sentence 3), that many city dwellers feel (sentence 4), supplied on a regular basis (sentence 9), that visit (sentence 12), and from cats and as sharp as razors (sentence 14).

Late Night City

<sup>14</sup>The darkness and bright lights do not discriminate. <sup>15</sup>Rich and poor, good and bad—almost everyone takes advantage of the city's insomnia.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words good to excellent and complete to entire (sentence 2 only), drop off to deposit (sentence 6), infrequent to reduced (sentence 7), interesting to intriguing (sentence 8), helpless to defenseless (sentence 12), and actual to real (sentence 13). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.
8. Pretend that all the things in the passage above are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage except sentence 14 in the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Your first sentence will be as follows:

It's midnight, but the city is still throbbing with activity.

Leaders

<sup>5</sup>In Great Britain, the elections are arranged by Parliament. <sup>6</sup>These elections take place at least once every five years. <sup>7</sup>Very short notice is given by Parliament before election day, so campaigning is limited by time. <sup>8</sup>Generally the candidates themselves are not given a lot of attention by the parties. <sup>9</sup>Instead, party differences are stressed.

<sup>10</sup>In the United States, great amounts of time and money are spent by political candidates. <sup>11</sup>A President is elected every four years on the first Tuesday in November. <sup>12</sup>That day is also the day for state and local elections. <sup>13</sup>The airwaves are flooded with radio and TV advertising. <sup>14</sup>All this publicity contributes to the build-up of the candidates with the most money. <sup>15</sup>Although they are backed by their parties, their success is determined mainly by their ability to raise funds.

Steps

- 16. Rewrite the entire passage changing only the following sentences to the active voice: sentences 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 13. Look for the word by to find the subject for each new sentence or part of the new sentence. If you do not find the word by, think of a new subject that would be logical. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In China, the Communist Party chooses the paramount leader.

Note: The word Parliament (sentence 5) is singular in American English.

- 22. Rewrite the entire passage condensing the sentences indicated by replacing several words in each with one of the word forms below:

sentence 4: ballot/balloting sentence 12: fixed/fixes sentence 7: advance/in advance sentence 14: promote/promotion sentence 8: emphasis/emphasized sentence 15: financial/finances

- 24. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 3 and 4, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 10 and 11, and sentences 13 and 14 with words like who, which, and that. Remember that sometimes you must put one sentence inside the other to make the new sentence sound correct.

A Letter Home

<sup>3</sup>First, he apologizes to his parents for writing so irregularly. <sup>4</sup>He knows his letters have been few and short, but he hopes his parents understand how busy he has been during his first semester as a freshman in college.

<sup>5</sup>He goes on to thank them for encouraging him to make friends. <sup>6</sup>A lot of freshmen have had problems with roommates, and he is grateful that he has not. <sup>7</sup>He has not joined a fraternity because he feels he can mix with people more freely without the label of a fraternity.

<sup>8</sup>He has one suggestion for his parents concerning his sister Peggy's preparations for college. <sup>9</sup>He feels she will adjust better if they are firmer about her habits of study. <sup>10</sup>He regrets his own lack of seriousness during his years in high school and admits he is still struggling with self-discipline.

<sup>11</sup>He urges his parents not to worry about him. <sup>12</sup>He can't come home until the summer vacation because the trip of 3,000 miles is too expensive, but he promises that he will write again very soon.

Steps

11. Pretend that this letter was written several years ago. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense, but do not change the word are in sentence 2. You will need to add past tense signals like did, was, were, could, had, and would throughout your composition. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

A college student was writing to his parents during a break between semesters. These are some of the things he said in his letter home.

14. Rewrite the entire passage changing all reported speech to direct speech. You must decide what the speaker's exact words are and put quotation marks around them. Do not change the first paragraph. The first sentence in your second paragraph will be as follows:

"First, I apologize to you for writing so irregularly.

18. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases to one or two words or a hyphenated word that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: between semesters (sentence 1), in college (sentence 4), with roommates (sentence 6), of a fraternity (sentence 7), of study (sentence 9), in high school (sentence 10), and of 3,000 miles (sentence 12). Your first sentence will be as follows:

<sup>12</sup>A Libran is an affectionate partner in marriage. <sup>13</sup>However, he must guard against seeming fickle. <sup>14</sup>Sometimes he shows an interest of a romantic nature in another person. <sup>15</sup>His partner may become furious. <sup>16</sup>the Libran may think he can handle more than one intimate relationship, but there is great danger. <sup>17</sup>He should not overestimate himself in such matters.

Steps

4. Rewrite the entire composition changing the words a Libran or the Libran to Librans wherever they appear. This means that you will be writing about many Librans instead of just one (throughout your composition. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

Librans are people born between September 22 and October 22. Their sign of the zodiac is the Scales.

18. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases to one or two words or a hyphenated word that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: of the zodiac (sentence 2), in business (sentence 7), of fashion (sentence 10), in beauty culture (sentence 11), in marriage (sentence 12), and of a romantic nature (sentence 14). Remember to change a plural noun to its singular form if it precedes another noun. Your first sentence will be as follows:

His zodiac sign is the Scales.

25. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 2 and 3, sentences 4 and 5, sentences 7 and 8, sentences 9 and 10, sentences 12 and 13, and sentences 14 and 15 using words like who, which, and whose or although, since, when, and because. Leave out the word However in sentence 13.

The Light-Fingered Elephant

<sup>4</sup>"I was hanging on her trunk trying to get it out of her mouth when help came," said Recotta. <sup>5</sup>Unfortunately, the check had already disappeared inside the four-ton animal. <sup>6</sup>Zoo officials wrote Recotta another check later that day, but the banks had closed, so he had to find himself a check-cashing place.

<sup>7</sup>Can you imagine this scene? <sup>8</sup>The zookeeper comes home late, and his wife says, "You're late. Where have you been?"

<sup>9</sup>The unfortunate man replies, "I couldn't help it. An elephant swallowed my paycheck!"

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write. When you finish this composition, give it to your teacher or tutor immediately. Do not go on to Step 3 below.
3. Pretend that the zookeeper in the story above is a woman instead of a man. Rewrite the entire passage changing the name Ed Recotta to Edith Recotta in the first paragraph. Make all other necessary changes throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

February: <sup>5</sup>A sincere wish to improve the neighborhood prompts George to look into the possibility of planting trees. <sup>6</sup>He contacts the local block association. <sup>7</sup>The block association sends him a list of public-spirited merchants.

March: <sup>8</sup>George encourages the merchants to contribute to the new tree fund. <sup>9</sup>Some merchants give generous contributions. <sup>10</sup>George also asks local residents to give some money. <sup>11</sup>Although a few people ignore this request, most greet it enthusiastically.

April: <sup>12</sup>Finally the fund reaches the necessary amount. <sup>13</sup>George orders the new trees, and the nursery delivers and plants them.

May: <sup>14</sup>George puts up signs like “Curb your dog!” and “Please water me.” <sup>15</sup>The trees make people a little happier, and George adds one more sign: “Smile! You are in a friendly neighborhood.”

Steps

10. Rewrite the entire passage in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before the main verb. Do not change anything in quotation marks. Your first sentence will be as follows:

People have sometime called Manhattan a forest of glass and steel.

15. Rewrite the entire passage changing every sentence except sentence 12 from the active voice to the passive voice. Do not change anything in quotation marks. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Manhattan is sometimes called a forest of glass and steel.

Remember to leave out the by-phrase (just as by people has been left out of the sample sentence above) unless you really need it to make the meaning of the sentence clear.

Model Parents

<sup>15</sup>Both mothers came home to a reflection of themselves and their habits, but only one of them was pleased!

Steps

6. Rewrite the entire passage in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. Do not change the first paragraph or sentences 3 and 9. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Mrs. Goodhouse is a conscientious housekeeper. After she goes to work tomorrow, her children will clean the apartment.

9. Rewrite the entire passage in the past perfect tense (had + participle). Do not change the first paragraph. Your second and third paragraphs will begin as follows:

Mrs. Goodhouse is a conscientious housekeeper. When she came home from work yesterday, she saw that her children had cleaned the apartment.

Mrs. Frowze is a terrible housekeeper. When she came home from work yesterday, she saw that her children had made a big mess.

<sup>1</sup>Our beautiful country is being destroyed by you and me. <sup>2</sup>If we are not stopped by new and stricter laws, the destruction could be completed in a few short years.

<sup>3</sup>Our problem has been stated again and again by the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Club, and other environmental groups. <sup>4</sup>We have been lulled to sleep by the false image of endless resources. <sup>5</sup>Our natural environment has been taken for granted. <sup>6</sup>This kind of ignorance has been displayed even by some of our so-called leaders. <sup>7</sup>The following statement was made by one of them: "If you've seen one redwood, you've seen them all."

<sup>8</sup>Strong antipollution and conservation laws must be passed by Congress. <sup>9</sup>Such laws must be enforced by federal, state, and local governments. <sup>10</sup>Finally our personal, individual concern has to be shown. <sup>11</sup>If it isn't expressed soon in day-to-day actions, we will be surrounded by, and buried in, our own garbage and wasted earth.

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but don't copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
16. Rewrite the entire passage in the active voice. Look for the word by to find the subject for each new sentence or part of the new sentence. If you do not find the word by, think of a new subject that would be logical. Your first sentence will be as follows:

You and I are destroying our beautiful country.

Note: Step 16 is the reverse of Step 15.

New York Is More

<sup>11</sup>Fifth Avenue boasts an elegant array of clothing and jewelry stores. <sup>12</sup>Some customers get bills of $50,000 or more! <sup>13</sup>An afternoon on this tempting avenue can be a lot of fun but very expensive.

<sup>14</sup>New York also has a huge population. <sup>15</sup>There are more than seven million people in this rather small area. <sup>16</sup>Even if New York does not have the biggest and best of everything, it seems to have the most of everything crowded into one place!

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words remarkable to incredible (sentence 2), center to hub (sentence 7), unending to constant (sentence 8), elegant to fashionable (sentence 11), afternoon to hour and expensive to costly (sentence 13), huge to enormous (sentence 14), and more than to over (sentence 15). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.
24. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 3 and 4, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 9 and 10, and sentences 11 and 12 with words like who, which, whose, where, and that. Remember that sometimes you must put one sentence inside the other to make the new sentence correct.

<sup>1</sup>Recently a crew of diggers uncovered some old bones. <sup>2</sup>They gave them to Michael Brinks, a teacher in the elementary school in that town. <sup>3</sup>Brinks was curious about the age of the bones. <sup>4</sup>He decided to send them to the University of Oregon for examination.

<sup>10</sup>Several weeks later, Brinks received a package that looked very official from the University of Oregon. <sup>11</sup>He opened it immediately. <sup>12</sup>He found the bones and a letter inside. <sup>13</sup>The letter said, "The bones in this package come from an ancient horse species which probably lived during the Ice Age."

Steps

6. Pretend you are a fortune teller telling this story. Rewrite the entire passage except the quotation in sentence 13 in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Next month a crew of diggers will uncover some old bones.

20. Rewrite the entire passage changing the underlined phrases and clauses to one or two words or to hyphenated words. Then place the new word(s) in front of the noun that the phrase or clause originally followed: of diggers (sentence 1), in the elementary school (sentence 2), of fifth graders (sentence 5), that looked very official (sentence 10), and in this package (sentence 13).

Old Is Beautiful

<sup>1</sup>When I walk down Third Avenue, I love to peer into the windows of the little shops that sell old and beautiful things. <sup>2</sup>Since I often take my walks after closing time, I cup my hands against the windows to get a small look at the treasures inside. <sup>3</sup>I see things that tell a story without words, bits of history, often something that is clearly one of a kind. <sup>4</sup>Some things look as if they have not been cared for deeply in a long time, but I know their beauty is still there beneath their worn surface.

<sup>5</sup>This is how I feel about old people, too. <sup>6</sup>I know their value, and it hurts me when others miss it. <sup>7</sup>I was raised by my grandmother and given a deep sense of the value of experience. <sup>8</sup>My sister and I were taught to respect all people, regardless of their age, color, or creed. <sup>9</sup>My grandmother was loved by all the people around her because she was known to be a wise and kind woman, able to do things well even in her last years.

<sup>10</sup>Old people should be treated like fine gold. <sup>11</sup>They may be tarnished by age, but they can be polished with respect. <sup>12</sup>You might be surprised by their bright and shining qualities.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words story to tale (sentence 3), worn to old (sentence 4), deep to abiding (sentence 7), wise to honest (sentence 9), and kind to affectionate (sentence 17). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.

16. Rewrite the entire passage changing only sentences 7, 8, 9, 10, and 12 to the active voice. Look for the word by to find the subject for each new sentence or part of the new sentence. If you do not find the word by, think of a new subject that would be logical. Sentence 7 will be as follows:

My grandmother raised me and gave me a deep sense of the value of experience.

22. Rewrite the entire passage condensing the sentences indicated below by replacing several words in each with one of the word forms below:

sentence 1: antique/antiques sentence 4: cherish/cherished sentence 2: glimpse/glimpsing sentence 9: competent/competence sentence 3: unique/uniqueness sentence 12: luster/lustrous

Note: Sentence 1 can be written correctly in two ways, but the example below is the most concise way:

When I walk down Third Avenue, I love to peer into the windows of the little antique shops.

One Thing I Like

Mr. R: <sup>3</sup>I like the fact that my writing is a mirror of my thoughts. <sup>4</sup>I can't lie when I write.

Mrs. B: <sup>5</sup>Sometimes I can think of a few ideas with real meaning. <sup>6</sup>I like that.

Mr. S: <sup>7</sup>Why are we talking about this?

Ms. A: <sup>8</sup>I think I know. <sup>9</sup>Some of us have never seen one good thing in our writing. <sup>10</sup>It won't do any good to get praise for it if we see it as the flattery of an anxious teacher. <sup>11</sup>We have to see something good in it.

<sup>12</sup>I then asked some students whose silence was rather noticeable to say one thing. <sup>13</sup>Mr. D. spoke with a tone of resentment in his voice.

Mr. D: <sup>14</sup>I feel the same way as Mr. R. <sup>15</sup>I can't lie in writing.

Ms. M: <sup>16</sup>Do you like that fact or dislike it? <sup>17</sup>If you like it, your writing will be better. <sup>18</sup>Give yourself a chance!

Steps

- 12. Rewrite the entire passage in three paragraphs using reported speech. Do not change sentences 1 and 2, which are your first paragraph, or sentences 12 and 13, which begin your third paragraph. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Mr. R. said that he liked the fact that his writing was a mirror of his thought.

- 13. Rewrite the entire passage changing each portion of dialog into a separate paragraph of direct speech. Remember to add quotation marks, commas and phrases such as Mr. R. said to your composition. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Mr. R. said, "I like the fact that my writing is a mirror of my thoughts. I can't lie when I write."

- 20. Rewrite the entire passage changing the underlined phrases and clauses to one or two words or to hyphenated words. Then place the new word(s) in front of the noun that the phrase or clause originally followed: for basic writers (sentence 1), they gave spontaneously (sentence 2), what real meaning (sentence 5), of an anxious teacher (sentence 10), whose silence was rather noticeable (sentence 12), and of resentment (sentence 13). Remember that you need to find a new form for the key word in your original phrase or clause. Sometimes the new form needs an -s, -s', or -ly ending. Often you will end up with two words.

<sup>1</sup>According to a popular theory, politics always influences fashion. <sup>2</sup>We use the word “conservative,” for example, just as frequently to describe a tie as to describe a politician.

<sup>3</sup>When the country is leaning to the right, designers drop hems, then raise them gradually to the knee. <sup>4</sup>They often use padding and a close-fitting waist to accent a “feminine” shape. <sup>5</sup>Women use more makeup and spend more time at the hairdressers. <sup>6</sup>Men avoid beards and sideburns and keep their hair short. <sup>7</sup>Crewcuts typify conservatism.

<sup>8</sup>When the country is more socially-conscious, people use clothing to express their identity and individualism. <sup>9</sup>Women may wear granny dresses and miniskirts to the same party. <sup>10</sup>We see longer, more natural hairstyles on both men and women, and many African-Americans no longer straighten their hair.

<sup>11</sup>What does it mean if an era seems to have no outstanding style? <sup>12</sup>Maybe if politics turn people off at that time, they don’t use appearances to make a political statement.

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but don’t copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
6. Pretend you are predicting the relation of politics and fashion in the twenty-first century. Rewrite the entire passage except the first paragraph and sentence 11 in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. The first sentence in your second paragraph will be as follows:

When the country leans to the right, designers will drop hems, then raise them gradually to the knees.

15. Rewrite the entire passage changing every sentence except sentence 11 from the active voice to the passive voice. Your first sentence will be as follows:

According to a popular theory, fashion is always influenced by politics.

Note: If a sentence has two parts, change only one of them to the passive voice.

Professor Frazier's Class

<sup>8</sup>Clearly, Professor Frazier has all the necessary features of a good teacher. <sup>9</sup>Since he inspires his students, they often become deeply involved in their studies.

Steps

17. Imagine that Professor Frazier is a terrible teacher instead of an excellent one. Rewrite the entire composition changing each sentence from the affirmative to the negative so that your composition says the opposite of what the model passage says. In some sentences, you can simply add the word not. In others, you will need other negative words like no, no longer, nobody, none, neither ...nor, etc. You may also change to the opposite meaning by changing an adjective. Your first sentence should be as follows:

Nobody wants to be in Professor Frazier's class.

22. Rewrite the entire passage condensing the sentences indicated by replacing several words in each with one of the word forms below:

sentence 5: interact/interaction sentence 7: confront/confrontation sentence 6: relevant/relevancy sentence 7: controversial/controversy sentence 8: essential/essentials sentence 9: invest/invested

Rich and Poor

<sup>15</sup>Such changes do not affect all Americans equally. <sup>16</sup>A major journal of American business always publishes an interesting list of the 400 richest people in the country. <sup>17</sup>Recently, this list showed a sharp increase in the number of billionaires! <sup>18</sup>Clearly, the gap between rich and poor is growing.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words steady to regular (sentence 1), natural to inevitable and go on to continue (sentence 2), disturbing to unfortunate (sentence 3), unskilled to service (sentence 8), dramatically to significantly (sentence 10), and interesting to useful (sentence 16). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.

10. Pretend that all these things have happened recently. Rewrite the entire passage except sentences 1 and 2 in the present perfect tense, the tense that uses have or has before the main verb.

Since 1979, however, newspapers have noted a disturbing increase in the number of poor Americans.

15. Rewrite the entire passage changing every sentence except sentences 4, 10, 14, and 18 from the active voice to the passive voice. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In the late 1970s, the so-called war on poverty was marked by a steady decrease in the number of poor Americans.

Note: Rewrite the negative sentences 4 and 15 as naturally as possible.

<sup>6</sup>The music itself changed, too. <sup>7</sup>Some of it got sharper, some of it got sweeter, but the beat developed in a lot of different directions. <sup>8</sup>That insistent, and eventually boring, disco beat gave way to an extensive variety of rhythms.

<sup>9</sup>One of the high points of the rock rebirth was a major event of 1985: the recording of "We Are the World" by an ensemble of about 50 rock stars, young and old, black and white, to help starving people in Africa. <sup>10</sup>They showed that rock was alive and well, and its heart was beating for more than fun and money.

Steps

2. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words turning on to watching (sentence 4), showy to elaborate and large to huge (sentence 5), a lot of to lots of (sentence 7), extensive to wide (sentence 8), major to important (sentence 9), and ensemble to group (sentence 9). Remember that sound determines whether you should use a or an.

6. Pretend you are writing this story in the seventies and predicting the future. Rewrite the entire passage in the future tense using will at least once in every sentence. Do not change the first paragraph or sentences 3 and 9. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

In the mid-eighties, rock music will come alive again.

Note: Underline the word Thriller (sentence 3) to show it is a music album.

9. Rewrite the entire passage in the past perfect tense (had + participle). Do not change sentence 2, the end of sentence 5, or sentence 10. Your first sentence will be as follows:

By the mid-eighties, rock music had come alive again.

Rush Hour Blues

<sup>18</sup>Finally the train reaches its destination. <sup>19</sup>The commuter is already exhausted. <sup>20</sup>He says to himself, "What a way to start the day!"

Steps

4. Rewrite the entire composition changing the word commuter to commuters wherever it appears. This means that you will be writing about many commuters instead of just one throughout your composition. Your first three sentences will be as follows:

Why do commuters frequently look so miserable? Here is the sad story of railroad commuters. They are victims of the rush hour blues.

7. Pretend that the story above actually happened to one commuter. Rewrite the entire passage changing everything except the first paragraph and the quotation in the last sentence to the past tense. The first sentence in your second paragraph will be as follows:

He got up at 6:00 A.M. and ate a quick breakfast.

26. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentence 2 and 3, sentences 4 and 5, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 12 and 13, sentences 15 and 16, and sentences 18 and 19 in the shortest and clearest way possible. Do not change or leave out any information about your topic.

The Schoolyard

<sup>14</sup>Only the surface shows. <sup>15</sup>Somewhere deeper, thoughts race, feelings are hurt, friendships are tested. <sup>16</sup>Some children learn more in the schoolyard than in school.

Steps

8. Pretend that all these things are happening right now. Rewrite the entire passage changing everything after the first paragraph to the present continuous tense, which uses a form of the auxiliary be and an -ing form of the main verb. Use at least one -ing form in every sentence except the first part of sentence 7. The first sentence of your second paragraph will be as follows:

In one corner of the schoolyard, two teams are playing basketball.

21. Rewrite the entire passage using the words below to replace two or more words in the sentences indicated. Remember to add a small word if necessary to make the new word fit in correctly.

sentence 2: sense

sentence 7: immobile

sentence 10: departing sentence 6: intently sentence 9: huddle

sentence 13: frown

Sentence 2 will be as follows:

If you watch children playing after school, you begin to get a sense of their feelings.

Scorpions

<sup>1</sup>Scorpions are people who were born under the zodiac sign of the Scorpion (October 23 to November 21). <sup>2</sup>Their main characteristic is intensity—like the sting of a scorpion. <sup>3</sup>They are represented by artists of great fame such as Bizet, Picasso, Dostoyevsky, Keats, and Turgenev.

<sup>4</sup>Scorpions have both strong virtues and strong vices. <sup>5</sup>On the positive side, they are very serious and energetic people. <sup>6</sup>They are usually very successful in their life's work. <sup>7</sup>They show their outstanding abilities as artists and scientists. <sup>8</sup>On the negative side, they must guard against touchiness and cruelty. <sup>9</sup>Also, they have a tendency to make fun of things. <sup>10</sup>They treat love seriously. <sup>11</sup>However, their intense love can easily turn to jealousy or hate if the loved one gives them any reason for it.

<sup>12</sup>Fortunately, Scorpions' ability to control themselves is unusually strong. <sup>13</sup>They can handle their powerful feelings. <sup>14</sup>They hardly ever lose their composure completely.

Steps

5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word Scorpions to a Scorpion wherever it appears. You will be writing about one person instead of many, and you can call the person "he," or "she," but once you choose one of those words, you must stick with it throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

A Scorpion is a person who was born under the zodiac sign of the Scorpion (October 23 to November 21).

21. Rewrite the entire passage using the words below to replace two or more words in the sentences indicated.

sentence 3: renowned sentence 9: mock sentence 12: self-control

sentence 7: excel

sentence 11: provokes sentence 14: seldom

Sentence 3 will be as follows:

They are represented by renowned artists such as Bizet, Picasso, Dostoyevsky, Keats and Turgenev.

23. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 6 and 7, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 10 and 11, and sentences 13 and 14 with the words and, but, or so. Leave out the word Also in sentence 9 and the word However in sentence 11. Make your new sentences as clear and concise as possible.

Elliot: <sup>6</sup>Evelyn, I love you, and I want to marry you very soon.

Evelyn: <sup>7</sup>That sounds wonderful.

Elliot: <sup>8</sup>There are a few things I have to know first, however.

Evelyn: <sup>9</sup>Ask me anything, dear.

Elliot: <sup>10</sup>Have you been looking for a man like me?

Evelyn: <sup>11</sup>Yes, and I'm sure I've found him.

Elliot: <sup>12</sup>What will you do if I lose all my hair tomorrow?

Evelyn: <sup>13</sup>I'll still love you. You can count on that.

Elliot: <sup>14</sup>Do you have any questions for me?

Evelyn: <sup>15</sup>No, but I hope you love cats as much as you love me. <sup>16</sup>My six cats are afraid to sleep alone, so they always sleep with me.

Steps

12. Rewrite the entire passage in two paragraphs using reported speech in the second paragraph. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

One day Elliot met Evelyn, a reference librarian, and everything changed. Elliot told Evelyn he loved her and wanted to marry her very soon.

13. Rewrite the entire passage changing each portion of dialog into a separate paragraph of direct speech. Remember to add quotation marks, commas and phrases such as Elliot said to your composition. Your third paragraph will be as follows:

Elliot said, "Evelyn, I love you, and I want to marry you very soon."

Spendthrifts

<sup>1</sup>I have never been able to make sense of my attitude toward money. <sup>2</sup>I can walk into a department store and spend $1,000 on a suit, then go home and squeeze three cups of tea out of one teabag! <sup>3</sup>Am I a spendthrift, a miser, or both?

<sup>4</sup>A spendthrift is a person who likes to spend money. <sup>5</sup>She always buys things without regard to cost. <sup>6</sup>All her spending gives her pleasure, so she indulges herself with shopping sprees. <sup>7</sup>She is both warmhearted and generous. <sup>8</sup>She has a lot of friends because she often treats everybody to drinks and meals. <sup>9</sup>She would even give or lend money to her worst enemy! <sup>10</sup>Some people can accept a spendthrift's habits very easily. <sup>11</sup>They consider such a person immature, but they enjoy being with her, nevertheless.

<sup>12</sup>Are you a little like the person just described? <sup>13</sup>If you are one of the big spenders of the world, you will have debts, but you may have a lot of fun, too.

Steps

3. Imagine that the spendthrift in the passage is a man instead of a woman. Rewrite the entire passage making the necessary changes in the second paragraph only. The first two sentences of your second paragraph will be as follows:

A spendthrift is a person who likes to spend money. He always buys things without regard to cost.

4. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words a spendthrift to spendthrifts in the second paragraph only. This means that you will be writing about many spendthrifts instead of just one throughout your composition. Be careful with the possessive form in sentence 10. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Spendthrifts are people who like to spend money.

17. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words spendthrifts or a spendthrift to misers or a miser in the title and in the second paragraph so that you are writing about the opposite kind of person from a spendthrift. Every sentence in the second paragraph should have at least one negative like not, no, no longer, nobody, none, neither ... nor, etc. The first sentence of your second paragraph will be as follows:

A Thanksgiving Celebration

<sup>8</sup>His family arrives between 2:00 and 3:00 P.M. <sup>9</sup>His sister-in-law always brings apple cider and a pie. <sup>10</sup>His niece sets the table, and his nephew carves the turkey. <sup>11</sup>Then all of them sit down to eat. <sup>12</sup>And how they love to eat!

<sup>13</sup>After the main part of the meal, the whole family takes a walk before they can eat dessert. <sup>14</sup>Dick gives his family most of the leftovers because he doesn't trust himself with so much food in the house.

Steps

3. Rewrite the entire passage changing the name Dick Barnett to Sally Barnett in the first paragraph. Make all other necessary changes throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Sally Barnett is a woman who loves to cook.

4. Rewrite the entire passage changing the name Dick Barnett to Dick and Judy Barnett. This means that you will be writing about a couple instead of just one man, and you should continue writing about those two people throughout your composition. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

Dick and Judy Barnett are people who love to cook. Every year on Thanksgiving, they get up at 6:00 A.M. to prepare for their family celebration.

Note: This step has more than 30 changes! If you have difficulty, your teacher or tutor can assign a Step 4a, which has the same kinds of changes but not as many.

7. Pretend that Dick Barnett was your neighbor who died several years ago. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Dick Barnett was a man who loved to cook.

The Throwaway Society

<sup>6</sup>As proof of this trend in our daily lives, Toffler tells us to look at paper napkins and tissues, disposable diapers and nonreturnable bottles and cans. <sup>7</sup>Vegetables are sold in plastic bags. <sup>8</sup>The bags can be dropped into a pot of boiling water and thrown away after cooking. <sup>9</sup>Whole dinners are heated in throwaway trays. <sup>10</sup>They are even served in them. <sup>11</sup>All these things are quickly used up. <sup>12</sup>Then they are casually eliminated. <sup>13</sup>In Toffler's view, the American home has become little more than a large processing plant.

<sup>14</sup>Toffler claims that his countrymen are developing throwaway values to match their throwaway products. <sup>15</sup>He says that easy disposability leads to shorter man-thing relationships. <sup>16</sup>People were once linked to a few objects for a long time. <sup>17</sup>Now they are linked to many objects briefly.

Steps

11. Imagine that this passage is about the first edition of the book Future Shock. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In the first edition of his book Future Shock, author Alvin Toffler wrote that America had become a throwaway society.

Note: The book title in sentence 1 should be underlined in your composition, as the example shows.

14. Rewrite the entire passage changing all reported speech to direct speech. You must decide what the speaker's exact words are and put quotation marks around them. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In his book Future Shock, author Alvin Toffler writes, "America has become a throwaway society."

26. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentence 2, 3, and 4, sentences 7 and 8, sentences 9 and 10, sentences 11 and 12, and sentences 16 and 17 in the shortest and clearest way possible. Do not change or leave out any information about your topic.

Visitors

<sup>1</sup>Every year millions of people visit the United States. <sup>2</sup>Many come on business, some for sight-seeing, and others to see family members in different cities. <sup>3</sup>No matter what their reasons are, they are bound to meet surprises on a first visit.

<sup>4</sup>Most visitors are surprised by the pace of American cities. <sup>5</sup>They see people walking fast, talking fast, and eating fast. <sup>6</sup>Yet it seems to take forever to get through downtown traffic via public transportation. <sup>7</sup>Visitors are fascinated by the most spectacular skyscrapers with their clean lines of glass and steel. <sup>8</sup>But looking down, they find streets that are dirty and cluttered, always under some kind of construction or repair. <sup>9</sup>If the visitors do not speak English, they have a hard time making themselves understood. <sup>10</sup>They miss the multilingual signs and employees found in other cities. <sup>11</sup>At the same time, they hear more languages around them than anywhere else in the world.

<sup>12</sup>What impression do these visitors take home? <sup>13</sup>Maybe they say the typical thing to their friends, "It's a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words Most visitors to The average visitor in sentence 4. You will be writing about one person instead of many people, and you can call the person "he," or "she," but once you choose one of those words, you must stick with it throughout your composition. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

The average visitor is surprised by the pace of American cities.

7. Rewrite the entire passage changing the words Every year to Last year in sentence 1. This means that you will be writing in the past tense throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Last year millions of people visited the United States.

Note: Do not change any of the words in the quotation in sentence 13.

Wheels

<sup>15</sup>Some people say mopeds are the perfect compromise between a bicycle and a motorcycle. <sup>16</sup>Others feel they run a poor second to either one. <sup>17</sup>Happy sales representatives say, <sup>18</sup>“Just look at the figures. <sup>19</sup>You’ll see a lot more people like them than dislike them. <sup>20</sup>They’re selling like crazy!”

Steps

1. Copy the entire passage, but do not copy the sentence numbers. Skip every other line as you write.
5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word mopeds to a moped wherever it appears. You will be writing about one typical moped instead of all mopeds throughout your composition. The first two sentences of your second paragraph will be as follows:

The moped is a familiar sight on city and suburban streets. It is basically a motorized bicycle.

25. Rewrite the entire passage using words like who, which, and whose or although, since, when, and because to combine six out of seven of the following pairs of sentences: sentences 2 and 3, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 8 and 9, sentences 11 and 12, sentences 13 and 14, sentences 15 and 16, and sentences 18 and 19. Leave out the word Later in sentence 3 if you combine sentences 2 and 3.

Who's Brad Pitt?

<sup>2</sup>Some of them looked as if they wondered why I was asking, and other seemed not to know whom I was talking about. <sup>3</sup>These were some of their responses.

Carrie: <sup>4</sup>Who's he?

Ethel: <sup>5</sup>I've never heard of him. <sup>6</sup>Is he the one that was in "Forrest Gump"?

<sup>7</sup>I told my friends I was talking about one of the hottest young actors in movies, and I named some of his films.

Florence: <sup>8</sup>I know who you mean! <sup>9</sup>He's that good-looking guy everyone is crazy about.

Henry: <sup>10</sup>Do you really think he's good-looking? <sup>11</sup>He acts as if he's in love with himself.

Bart: <sup>12</sup>I would, too, if I looked like him.

Roslyn: <sup>13</sup>You men sound envious of that young fellow. <sup>14</sup>Grow up!

Steps

4. Rewrite the entire passage, including the title, changing the name Brad Pitt to Brad Pitt and Christian Slater. This means that you will be writing about two movie stars instead of just one throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Recently I asked some of my older friends what they thought of Brad Pitt and Christian Slater.

12. Rewrite the entire passage in four paragraphs using reported speech. You will have to rewrite the first two people's remarks as one paragraph and the last four as one paragraph, too. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Carrie asked who he was.

13. Rewrite the entire passage changing each portion of dialog into a separate paragraph of direct speech. Remember to add quotation marks, commas and phrases such as Carrie said to your composition. Your second paragraph will begin as follows:

Carrie asked, "Who's he?"

<sup>4</sup>Holt says that teachers can encourage good writing by setting up classrooms where conversations among friends will take place. <sup>5</sup>In Holt's view, there are very few writing classrooms with such encouragement. <sup>6</sup>In fact, many teachers give the impression that talking and writing are for manipulating others. <sup>7</sup>Holt thinks that is why many students in universities believe that it is not possible to use words honestly. <sup>8</sup>Instead, they feel all speaking and writing involves lying. <sup>9</sup>They have become suspicious of words in print—and sometimes of words in general.

Steps

11. Imagine this passage is about the first edition of the book What Do I Do Monday? Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In the first edition of his book What Do I Do Monday?, John Holt talked about problems college students were having with writing.

Note: The book title in sentence 1 should be underlined in your composition, as the example shows.

14. Rewrite the entire passage changing all reported speech to direct speech. You must decide what the speaker's exact words are and put quotation marks around them. Your first sentence will be as follows:

In his book What Do I Do Monday?, John Holt talks about problems college students are having with writing. He says, "In order to write well, young people have to learn how to talk long and seriously to a friend they can trust."

19. Rewrite the entire passage changing the following phrases and clauses to a shorter form that can be placed before the noun they originally followed: they can trust (sentence 2), with a great deal of fluency (sentence 3), among friends (sentence 4), with such encouragement (sentence 5), in universities (sentence 7), and in print (sentence 9). In your first change, you have these two possibilities:

...a friend they can trust → a trustworthy friend or a trusted friend

The Yenta

<sup>7</sup>Yentas certainly are not bad people. <sup>8</sup>They pass on messages and advice. <sup>9</sup>They give up-to-the-minute weather reports. <sup>10</sup>They know who is doing what. <sup>11</sup>They see, hear, and know all and usually repeat it. <sup>12</sup>They have appointed themselves neighborhood reporters and guardians.

<sup>13</sup>Some of the yentas’ neighbors accuse them of being so concerned with local affairs that they neglect their own. <sup>14</sup>Sometimes, however, a child has to be found, or a mugging has to be reported. <sup>15</sup>Then the yentas’ services are invaluable. <sup>16</sup>Every neighborhood grudgingly appreciates its yentas. <sup>17</sup>It doesn’t matter what their color, creed, or accent is.

Steps

5. Rewrite the entire passage changing the word yentas to the yenta wherever it appears. You will be writing about one woman instead of many women throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:
The neighborhood yenta is a well-known woman.
7. Pretend that you are writing fifty years from now when yentas are not found in the neighborhoods any longer. Rewrite the entire passage in the past tense, but do not change sentences 3 or 4. Your first sentence will be as follows:
Years ago, neighborhood yentas were well-known women.
26. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 5 and 6, sentences 8, 9, and 10, sentences 14 and 15, sentences 16 and 17 in the shortest and clearest way possible. Do not change or leave out any information about your topic.

Zero Hour

<sup>5</sup>Long before the big moment arrives, the astronaut is put through a rigorous training program. <sup>6</sup>He receives instruction in all space-related subjects. <sup>7</sup>He also learns through simulation of space flight. <sup>8</sup>His body must be in excellent condition before a real flight.

<sup>9</sup>Three days before launching, he starts a special diet. <sup>10</sup>During the last 24 hours, he is isolated from his family to avoid emotional farewells. <sup>11</sup>The isolation also encourages maximum concentration.

<sup>12</sup>When zero hour is only three hours away, he takes an elevator to the top of the spaceship and enters the command module. <sup>13</sup>He straps himself into his seat. <sup>14</sup>When he has checked everything with Mission Control, there is nothing to do but wait. <sup>15</sup>He tries to relax. <sup>16</sup>If he doesn't succeed, can you blame him?

Steps

3. Imagine that the astronaut in the passage is a woman instead of a man. Rewrite the entire passage making the necessary changes. Your first two sentences will be as follows:

An astronaut is sitting tensely in a command module. She is waiting for zero hour, the moment of lift-off.

4. Rewrite the entire composition changing the words An astronaut to Two astronauts in sentence 1. This means that you will be writing about two men instead of one man throughout your composition. Your first sentence will be as follows:

Two astronauts are sitting tensely in a command module.

23. Rewrite the entire passage combining sentences 1 and 2, sentences 3 and 4, sentences 6 and 7, sentences 10 and 11, sentences 12 and 13, and sentences 14 and 15 with the words and, but, or so. You can leave out words like still and also. Make your new sentences as clear and concise as possible.

Sequence of Passages on Each Step

26 STEPS

Controlled Composition for Intermediate and Advanced Language Development

Third Edition

by Linda Ann Kunz

These product oriented writing texts use realistic model passages with appropriate vocabulary to help high school, college, and adult ESL/EFL students learn the important features of writing in grammatically correct English. Students in a class can work at their own pace and competence level to become familiar with the grammar and the mechanics of writing. Now with new and updated model passages and a design that is easier to follow, these texts maintain the features that have made them classics: comfortable readability, controlled vocabulary, and general interest topics as models for controlled composition tasks.

- 10 Steps presents 58 model writing passages. Students read and copy short writing passages, then follow a series of steps involving graduated tasks such as rewriting, changing tenses, combining sentences, and more.
- 26 Steps features 52 model writing passages. Students practice paragraphing, spelling, clauses, the perfect tenses, titles, beginnings, middles and endings, punctuation, proofreading and a variety of higher level tasks.
