There's this couple Louis and April...there couldn't be more of a perfect set of people who are meant to be together than them, it was love at first sight. This couple has been together for a while now and they have decided that they want to extend their family so they decided to have kids. The couple later on down the line has tried to have kids and it they just couldn't get pregnant something was wrong with the baby which would lead to a miscarriage. They got tired of trying and then the option of adoption came out and they really thought about it but before they set their hearts on that they wanted one last opinion, they heard of this thing called CRISPR which would edit genes in the baby to their liking. At first Louis and April was sceptical about it i mean it sounded a little "unnatural". They both thought that if they are going to raise a child that they are going to love the baby for who it is good or bad.

They went back to the doctor and let her know about their problem with the miscarriages, the doctor said that it was best recommended to try to calm down because of the stress being put on the baby wasn't good and it has bad for April health and body as well. April and Louis went on a little vacation to forget about the problems they were facing at home. Louis wanted to show April that he loved her no matter what would happen and that he really cares and loves his wife, he went and planned a whole day of adventures for them couples massage spa treatments and even a candle light dinner for the two of them for the last night of they trip. The night was perfect April loved it all. Few weeks after they came home April and Louis adopted a beautiful baby girl and named her London. London was healthy everything that they dreamed of they had thought their family was complete they had everything they wanted.....then things took a turn when four years later April found out that she has indeed pregnant, she was six weeks along and she was shocked she never has able to get this far along with no problems the couple was ecstatic but they didn't want to get their hopes up and something bad would happen like all the other times. They started going to the OB for regular check ups they wanted to keep this baby so bad they couldn't deal with another loss it would crush they soul, yes they had London but the thought of having another child put a spark in their eyes. April was able to carry the baby to term and everyone was happy about the baby they decided to name the baby King, London, King, April and Louis they was really one happy family, London loved having a baby brother. While both kids grew up Louis noticed something wasn't right with King so he took him to the doctor who in which informed Louis that the baby has becoming blind but it was a good thing that he caught it early so they can help treat it vigorously. The couple were introduced into "Gene Therapy". It was always something with them going wrong when it came to having kids, first miscarriages that lead to adoption then when they were able to have a kid the baby is blind, they just wanted the perfect family and although perfect is not really real they wanted some good to come in their life and stay but instead it has just problem after problem and by the baby boy becoming blind it felt like they did hit rock bottom. So they did everything in their power to help their baby boy. They did look into Gene Therapy and CRISPR came up again and although they said that they wouldn't change their baby genes the idea of the baby not being blind anymore if they did the CRISPR thing made them change their mind. This whole trial and King being blind took a toll on the family all together, in and out of hospitals, London missed playing with her brother like the old times, Louis missed April being happy but he had to be strong for his family. King started undergoing treatment he has only 5 and his main home wasn't even his house it has hospital beds.

The CRISPR gene therapy would take out the bad gene which would make King blind and replace it with a copy of a good gene so he could see again. This went on for months at hand and the family was getting scared that it wasn't working all this money they spent to make their baby see again was a waste. They were tired of putting their baby and family in pain they didn't want to see their baby have to live like this but they didn't want to give up. Overtime King's ability to see got worse before it got better but in due time he was able to regain some of his eyesight back but he would have to get checked every few months so the mutated gene would still be viable. All this work over the span of many years all the stress April and Louis wanted to give up so bad more than anything they wanted to give up on hope so bad but they kept on pushing with every inch of fight they had. They wanted this baby to have a chance at everything that it can and they held onto the possibility that this boy can see again in which he did, slowly but surely. Although King can't see 100% he only partially blind and Louis and April could take what they can get. Their family is not perfect not quite but they have been through a lot of stuff and it just makes them stronger and love each other more. They cherish and appreciate what they have so much and value their kids so much they don't know what they would do without them and for them they're forever grateful
